

As shown in the following newspaper article, the ANZ Bank supports the Integris Wu-Chi organisation and its work for young people and the community.

Gisborne Herald Wednesday 14th July 1994

General

Support pledged for local youth activities

In a drive to help the local community ANZ Bank pledged financial support for Gisborne's Wu-Chi School of Arts.

ANZ district manager Derrick Gould said the bank was pleased to be able to offer aid to youth and local communities.

The school's executive treasurer, Mark Feitsma, said the donation would go towards aiding the school in its main thrust of providing youth with the self discipline and social skills needed to take them to the top of their chosen path in life.

The Wu-Chi School of Arts is a martial arts school which works throughout the Eastland region and the East Coast of Australia.

Above from left: ANZ Bank's general manager of retail banking, Greg Camm and district manager, Derrick Gould presenting their donation to the Wu-Chi School of Arts executive director Wayne Cole and executive treasurer, Mark Feitsma. Looking on is ANZ's chief manager of central zone, Robin Taylor and local branch manager, Bernie Dekker.